MAKE YOUR INDELIBLE MARK

Getting to net zero while addressing global sustainability needs is a challenge of our lifetime with no historical precedent. It will require imagination, innovation, collaboration, and urgency.

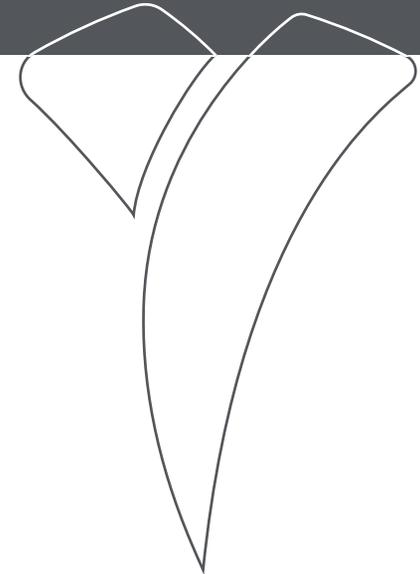

We have been working for 35 years in the energy sector and with companies challenged with finding sustainable environmental solutions. Leveraging our work with advancing women leaders, we see a unique opportunity for senior-level women leaders to come together from various companies and sectors to seize the moment. Together, you and the other women leaders can leverage your deep expertise and experience, along with your tenacity, ingenuity, endurance, and natural talent for collaboration.

In that spirit, we are offering our flagship Indelible Mark® program to a select group of women who want to amplify their efforts and make their mark in addressing this challenge. Through participating in this program, we are confident that a powerful new avenue will emerge for you, both individually and collectively, to make a significant positive impact on this global challenge.
